NEW QUESTION: 3
You administer an Azure SQL Database that runs in the S0 service tier. The database stored mission- critical data.
You must meet the following requirements:
minimize costs associated with hosting the database in Azure minimize downtime in the event of an outage
protect the database from unplanned events
What should you do?
A. Implement self-service point-in-time restore.
B. Ensure that secondary databases are online and readable at all times.
C. Create a continuously replicated copy.
D. Implement geo-replication only.
Answer: D
Explanation:
The data in your Microsoft Azure storage account is always replicated to ensure durability and high availability. Azure Storage replication copies your data so that it is protected from planned and unplanned events ranging from transient hardware failures, network or power outages, massive natural disasters, and so on. You can choose to replicate your data within the same data center, across zonal data centers within the same region, and even across regions.
When you create a storage account, you can select one of the following replication options:
Locally redundant storage (LRS)
Zone-redundant storage (ZRS)
Geo-redundant storage (GRS)
Read-access geo-redundant storage (RA-GRS)
The following table provides a quick overview of the scope of durability and availability that each replication strategy will provide you for a given type of event (or event of similar impact).
